The great idea of Columbus will be realised-though in a different and more beneficial form. raising up cities and kingdoms whereever it went-(to perish when it left them) changing its channel for the last time-to become fixed upon its shortand empire; and the ruins of which still attest their former magnificence, and excite the wonder of the criental

Por Jeremiah Mason said, "unless a man occasionally tax his faculties to the utmost, they will soon begin to fail." President John Adams said to Mr. Quincy, who found him reading Cicero, "It is with an old man as with an old horse, if you wish to get any work out of him, you must work him all the time." These two rules, so far as intellect is concerned, contain the secret
